I'm setting up an AWS account and I'd like to have a private, only-authorized bucket, with permissions set up only on the principal. For instance, I may only want to allow my Android app to access the file "android.apk" stored in the S3 bucket "Buckets/" but I don't want my normal desktop user account to be able to access the file. I've tried to do so in the Settings of the S3 bucket's Canned ACL's/Edit ACL..., but I'm not allowed to create an ACL for my default user. I'm currently using a regular Amazon AWS account, with the following permissions on the S3 bucket Viewer Access - Yes Access Key Id - Yes Secret Access Key - Yes Signer Certificate - Yes The reason I am trying to set up a bucket is to have the Android app upload a zip archive, generated in the
